It's later than you think! March 15; income tax day and the final day for registering your vote.

It seems to be the quaint custom around here to refer to auctioneers as "colonels." It's not a bad idea, either, as it helps to preserve the dignity of the profession, makes subtle reference to his wit, affability and qualities of salesmanship, adds to the glamor of the sale, no end, and pays tribute to the silvery tones of his voice. But, to be consistent, we should also use a military term to designate the clerks of the sales. They should also have a "brass hat" name, such as "lieutenant colonel," or perhaps, at least, the title of "major." And the ladies who serve the lunches on sale days! They should, by all means, receive some sort of rank, even if it's only a "second lieutenant.

Several citizens have reported hearing the coo of the mourning or turtle dove last Sunday morning. If these persons are not mistaken, then this seems to have been a record early date for their announced arival. Normally, the turtle dove does not make itself known in these parts until well after mid-March. A number of blue jays have made their appearance, and robins and cardinals are seen almost daily. It is also reported that that fifer of the fields, the meadowlark, which produces one of the most welcome bird songs of early spring, has been heard across the meadows. And in another two weeks, frogs will be croaking everywhere.

Editor C. W. Dale of the St. Joseph Record tells of a certain man who had been absent from the home town. When he returned from a visit, the first four people he met didn't know him and the next three didn't know he had been away. And yet, some of us think we have to run things or they won't go.

A male friend tells us that women usually look their worst when they are in a hurry. "Some women in a hurry look terrible," he says. He reasons it this way. With their faces fixed in a grim fighting look, they tighten up, hunch their shoulders, strain their heads forward, pound their heels into the pavement, stop or turn abruptly, bump into people, stumble, lose their bundles, as well as their charm, and get irritable. Here's some advice, although the women won't pay any attention to it: You can get there just as fast and look attractive while doing it. Wipe off that tortured frown. Deliberately assume a calm, self-possessed expression. Take a solid comfortable hold on purse and bundles. Then walk upright, head up, eyes looking ahead, so you can plan your turns and pivots and avoid obstacles and trouble. But, after all, who are we to be giving such advice?

Principal Paul W. Thomas, L. C. Alison and others who assisted should be given much credit for their efficient and capable management of the Regional basketball tournament games here this week. It is no small task to conduct an enterprise of this nature. Mr. Thomas has become an old hand at managing these events and has a complete grasp of he hard work, diplomacy and sportsmanship that is necessary.

This is the time of the year when:

A power lawn mower in front of the hardware store looks like a mighty desirable thing to have around.

The furnace gets cranky, and so does the coal and the coal shovel.

The ash pan gets heavier and harder to handle.

The song of the robin seems like music from heaven.

You wish you had saved up more of last summer's pay.

You start planning for a few fishing trips now and then, when, as and if you ever get time to fish.

Our Clean Story Club — "Does your husband work?"

"He sells smoked glasses during eclipses of the sun."

Tigers Play Good Game with Danville At Regional Contest

Westville Is Host To Basketball Fans

Only 18 points remained between the final victory and the Westville Tigers' score in the game with Danville High School in the Regional tournament on the Westville High School gym Thursday night. The Tigers played a good game, holding the Maroons to a count of 51, while they piled up 33 tallies.

Early in the game, the Tigers ran ahead of Danville for a brief period. By virtue of its victory over Hume Thursday night, by a score of 53-41, Georgetown met Danville Friday night. The score of the Georgetown-Hume game stood 30-16 in favor of the Buffaloes at the end of the half. This was the second defeat for Hume this season.

The Westville tournament has been attracting good crowds, but the heaviest attendance was Friday night for the championship clinch. The tournament is being managed by Principal Paul Thomas and L. C. Alison.

Blast in Plant Blows Out Windows Of Sunbeam Corp.

About 50 windows and skylights in the plant building occupied by the Sunbeam Corp. on N. State St., Westville, were blown out by an explosion at about 7:15 Wednesday morning. The explosion was in an annealing oven, caused, it was believed, by ignition of some varnish fumes.

About 160 employes were in the building at the time. Two women employes, Mrs. Louise Shannon and Jacqueline Mack, were cut slightly by glass, and Steve Bednar Sr., janitor was hit by some debris, but sustained no serious injury. Armatures for Sunbeam Mixmasters were being baked when the accident occurred.

Frank Trinko, plant manager, was about four feet from the oven, which is eight feet high, at the time of the blast. The oven was moved from its foundation. A section of the front wall also was pushed out. The building is owned by Paul Lisick. Deputy Fire Marshal Algy Appanaitis conducted an investigation. Officials of the corporation from Chicago arrived in Westville Wednesday to make plans for resuming operations again.

Churches Consider Merger Plan At Meeting Held in Tilton

Several from Westville and vicinity attended the meeting of the Congregational Christian Churches of Westville, Danville and Fithian last Sunday evening at the Tilton church to hear a discussion on the subject of merging the Congregational Christian and the Evangelical and Reformed Churches.

If the plan is approved in the final voting, the two churches will become the United Church of Christ. Ministers of the two communions will be enrolled as ministers of the United Church, and candidates for the ministry will have unchanged status.

Individual voting in the various churches will take place before April 1 for the Congregational Churches, and during May for the Reformed Churches.

The Rev. Walter Schlaretzki of Decatur, southern area director for the Congregational Church, presided at Sunday night's meeting.

Congregational Church Notes

Rev. C. R. Dierlamm, Minister

There is something about the Lenten season that makes a new appeal to the ambitious soul who desires to be of real worth to himself and to others. This habit of going to church is an excellent one if it makes one feel the broadening and deepening effect of a large view of the loving disposition of the Almighty. If the hour of worship can make you feel that the very God who hates sin and loves righteousness offers you all the benefits of a broadening Christian life by means of asking Him for the forgiveness of sin, then you are a fortunate worshipper. The one condition is the forgiveness of the only thing that separates man from his Creator and that is sin. It is an old fashioned term. The remedy is an old one, none better has ever been offered. This Lenten period stands for new life.

Rural Fire District To Include Midway In Five-Mile Area

About 300 Families To Be Given Protection

Enthusiastic support was given the plan for a Rural Fire District for the Georgetown vicinity at the preliminary meeting for that purpose last Friday evening in the Georgetown City Hall.

A temporary organization was formed, proposed district boundaries were mapped out, and arrangements were made to get signatures on petitions as a step in the procedure.

Among those attending were a number of farmers, citizens of the town, several city councilmen, members of the Fire Department, Mayor C. E. Spang and Fire Chief Riley Smith, who had called the meeting in behalf of the City Fire Department.

Fire Chief Smith was elected president of the temporary organization and Harry Lenhart was elected secretary. The proposed district will extend north to the north edge of Midway; south to the Frank Canaday road, just south of Olivet; west to the section line a half mile west of the Catlin-Indianola road; and east to the Indiana state line. The district would be about five miles wide. Estimates are that about 125 farm homes would be included in the district. Including Midway and Olivet, it is indicated that about 300 homes would benefit from the plan.

Arrangements are being made for the petitions to be presented to residents of the proposed district later this week so hat they can be ready for presentation to the county judge some time next week. The county judge will call a hearing, and if he approves the proposal, plans will be made for a special election on the tax evy, which must not exceed 2.5 mills. After the initial expense, it was indicated that the cost of operating the district would require a levy of much less than that amount. The big expense at the start will be the purchase of a pumper adapted for fighting farm fires, and equipping the present fire fighting equipment with a larger reservoir water tank.

If the voters of the area approve the plan at the election, the procedure would be for the county judge to appoint three trustees for the district, which would function largely as any other political subdivision with respect to determining the tav levy and the conduct of accounts and purchases. The district, of course, would be separate from any municipal or township control.

Fire Chief Smith and others explained some of the advantages of the district from both the point of view of the insurance underwriters and the beneficiaries of the added fire protection. It was pointed out that the advantages in insurance rates would more than compensate for the small additional tax levy. Added protective measures on farm and suburban homes, it was pointed out, such as fire protection cisterns, also will be an advantage in computing fire insurance rates.

20-Foot Highway To Indiana Line Will Get Under Way

Assurance is given that a new 20-foot concrete highway, with two traffic lanes, will be built east of Georgetown, extending towards the Indiana state line, this summer. It is designated as the chief county highway project for the season.

The road will extend in McKendree township and will be a starter to the through road to the Indiana line, connecting with the Cayuga road.

Definite progress was made in the details when the plans for the four bridges involved in the program were approved late last week by the State Highway Division and returned to Walter C. Dye, county highway commissioner.

Members of the right-of-way committee of the county Board of Supervisors were here Saturday to look over the proposed route. Work on acquiring the right-of-way will start next week. Upon the co-operation of citizens in getting right-of-way details closed without delay depends to some extent the speed with which the actual construction work can be started.

The plans of the road work are still in the hands of the State Highway Division, but approval is expected to follow shortly that for the bridges. The road is to run east on Mill St. Road, Fifth St., Georgetown, as it is officially designated, and to a point east of Lickskillet whence it will run in a northeasterly direction to Meeks Station and thence east. The four bridges span creeks tributary to the Vermilion and Little Vermilion Rivers, and are all on the 2½-mile stretch of road which passes through Liskskillet. When this season's project is completed, there will still remain 5½ miles to be improved by the county. A part of this may be blacktopped

It is stated that the bridges and right-of-way may cost about $75,000. About 27 or 28 acres will be needed for right-of-way. County motor fuel tax funds will be used. The hard roads committee will consider further some of the details of the program at its March 9 meeting, preparatory to advertising for bids.

The first bridge on the program will be a concrete structure 30 feet in length, consisting of two 9-foot spans and a middle span 12 feet long. Two other bridges will be 20 feet in length and another will be a cattle pass under the highway, six feet wide and with a clearance of six feet.

How to Put Up with Women's Styles

When Will Dudley's missus finally gave in to the new-style longer skirts, Will was mighty critical at first. Allowed as how women were a slave to fashion . . . ought to dress to please their husbands and not style designers.

Sue finally reminded Will of his habit of sitting by the radio Saturday afternoons in shirt sleeves and old slippers, listening to the sportcasts with a mellow glass of beer. Suggested that maybe Will was a slave to comfort.

And Will admitted she was right.

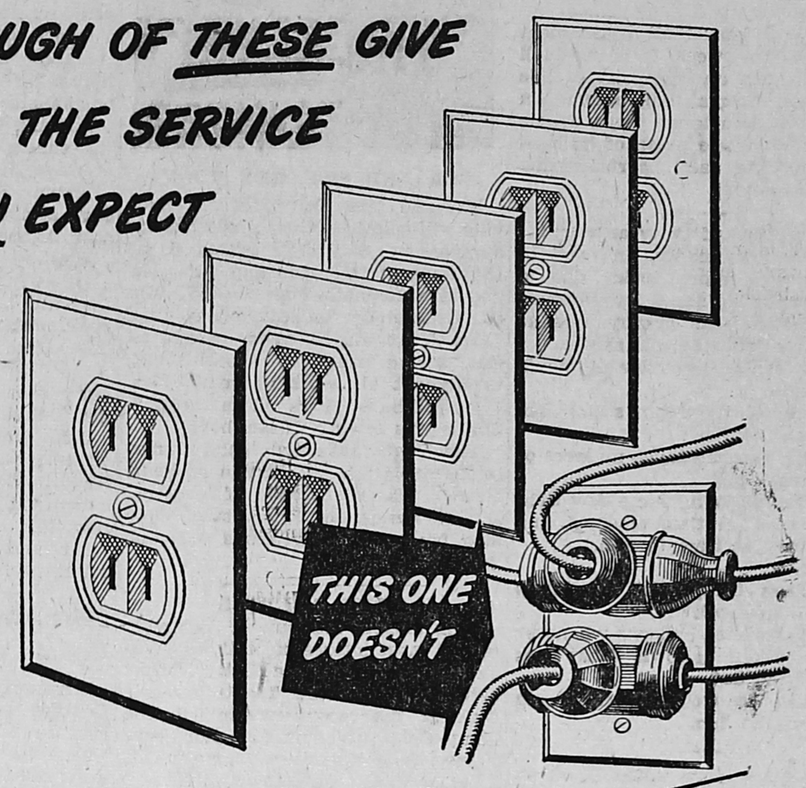

Perhaps the way somebody dresses isn't always to our taste—just as Will's glass of beer may be another person's cider.

But from where I sit, those little differences aren't important—unless we go out of our way to make them so, by being hypercritical. As Will says now: "Well, anyway, those long skirts hide a multitude of shins" . . . and lets it go at that!

A Lesson from England

England was the first great power to establish a representative government, as it was then constituted. The tradiion of individual liberty, which has come to its fullest flowering in pumper and other equipment would not by any means be a formidable the United States, had its roots in Britain. And now, ironically, England is proving that economic dictatorship and personal freedom cannot exist together.

Every present-day report from London tells of increasing restrictions, more and more regimentation of the people, more and more coercion by the Socialists in power to advance effect. Government officials, with staffs of spies and special police, tell the farmer what he may and may not do with what he produces. England has not, of course, emulated the frankly brutal methods employed in Russia, but the trend is ominously clear.

That is what always happens when citizens of any country surrender freedom in exchange for dubious promises of economic security. Any form of totalitarian economics — whether it be socialist, communist or fascist — must inevitably pursue the same policies. The state must be organized like an army, and the orders must be obeyed.

It must have a legion of informers to turn in delinquents. It must have the power to reach into every segment of the national life and adapt it to its own purposes. It cannot brook an opposition that might unseat it.

The most tragic development of the modern world has been the persistent fallacy that government should provide complete security — that it should stand between us and every conceivable contingency. This is the fallacy that has made possible all the tyranny, all the brutal disregard for the dignity and rights of the individual, all the perversions of justice and decency that have blackened our civilization. Millions have pinned their faith in purely animal values and purely material considerations. They have put security ahead of freedom, and they have lost both.

The wisdom of those who founded this nation was never so apparent as it is today. They saw clearly that only a government of limited powers could be trusted to preserve the liberties of the people.

More and Bigger Pensions

Since measures to boost federal old age pensions under the social security system are getting support in Congress from members of both parties, it might be in line to suggest that this subject be postponed until the time of relative calm and good sense of a non-political year. There is too much chance now of slap-happy pension increases just for the fun of getting more votes.

While higher pensions are under consideration, it might be opportune also to look into some plan whereby owners and operators of small businesses, the farmers, farm hands and others could benefit from the social security system. It also might be a good thing to find out why there never has been a public audit of the millions that have poured into the treasury's general fund from the social security system. How this money is being used now is a pertinent question. Many wonder also whether there will actually be a federal social security fund when the final day of reckoning comes. There are numerous angles to the social security law that should be considered very carefully, and not under the stress of a campaign year.

More and bigger old age pensions have been proposed every year since the social security act underwent its last major revision in 1939. Change in the direction of more liberal benefits are due to come, leaders of both the Democratic and Republican parties agree, but those who are wise in both parties should fight shy of hasty action that would be harmful to the social security system and the country.

Smart Aleck Officeholders

Those who have experienced discourteous treatment on the part of a few county officeholders in the past few years now find, as always, that these same officeholders become quite amiable and agreeable since election time is approaching.

It might be well to remember those persons when you go to vote. It is unfortunate that they don't have more opposition. This thing of providing perpetual political berths in county affairs for a few persons who do not appreciate the fact that they are merely hired by the taxpayers is not good government for any county.

Some of these people who don't care how they treat the taxpayers after election, but become mighty friendly just before election, are going to get bounced out one of these days, whether they belong to the majority party or not.

Lincoln's Hope for America

We heard someone speculate the other day on how Lincoln might handle the world problems of today as affecting the United States. One answer may be found in a discussion by one of his biographers, G. Lynn Sumner, in his book, "Meet Abraham Lincoln." He says:

"On his way to the inauguration, Lincoln was invited to speak before the New Jersey State Senate. Visiting historic Trenton stirred memories of his boyhood. He told how, when he first began to read, he had been inspired by the struggles here of Washington and his troops. Then he voiced what may well be called 'Lincoln's vision of America.' . . He said:

"'I recollect thinking then, boy even though I was, tthat there must have been something more than common that these men struggled for. I am exceedingly anxious that that thing—that something even more than national independence; that something that held out a great promise to all the people of the world to all time to come—I am exceedingly anxious that this Union, the Constitution, and the liberties of the people shall be perpetuated in accordance with the original idea for which that struggle was made, and I shall be most happy indeed if I shall be a humble instrument in the hands of the Almighty . . .for perpetuating the object of that great struggle.'

"Lincoln never suggested, by word or deed, enforcing democracy on other nations by military superiority. He did have this great hope for America: that she would preserve the heritage of freedom which would be the envy of the whole world."

More Older Residents

We are being shown year after year that the life of man is being prolonged. Through better standards of living, increased knowledge concerning personal health, better sanitation, better medical service, the older element of the population of this country is gaining in percentage.

In 1940, one out of every four persons was over 45 years of age, according to the United States Health Service. This compares with only one out of eight reaching that age in 1850. Predictions are being made that by 1980, one out of every two persons will have passed 45.

Adjustments must be made, therefore, in the shaping of employment and retirement plans in industry and business everywhere. The current tendency for employers to favor younger persons in job placement to the denial of new opportunities to men and women of middle age is of special concern in this connection.

Many men and women physically vigorous and mentally alert are being shut out from employment opportunities because of age alone. Their relegation to pensioner status while they still have several decades of life ahead will not only make life miserable for many an active person, but will rob the world of the benefit of the vocational skills and wisdom those persons have acquired through experience.

It is encouraging to note that this is being considered one of the major problems in our social life. It means that adjustments will be made so that entirely different policies will be established in the next few years which will value experience, background, health, capabilities and wisdom, regardless of middle age, or any other accumulation of years. A number of progressive employers are already taking the broader view of this situation.

WESTVILLE LOCALS

Mrs. Peter Sungail and children of Chicago are visiting relatives in Westville. She is the former Rose Kovanic.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Culbertson of Chicago visited recently at the home of Mrs. Culbertson's mother, Mrs. Veronica Kaluza.

A dinner party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Youhas, N. State St. Feb. 22 in honor of the 20th birthday anniversaries of their son, George, and niece, Jean Youhas. Guests present included Mr. and Mrs. George Youhas Sr., Mr. and Mrs. George Youhas Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Mark Damilano and Mr. and Mrs. Fonce Delattre. Centerpiece for the dinner table was a large birthday cake. A social evening was enjoyed following the meal.

The Lord's Prayer is not, as some fancy, the easiest, the most natural of all devout utterances. It may be committed to memory quickly, but it is slowly learned by heart.

Four Auctioneers to Officiate At Community Sale Saturday

The baritone voices of four of the leading auctioneers of Central Illinois and Western Indiana will call for bids Saturday, March 6, at the big community sale to be held just west of the Public Square in Georgetown. The sale is being staged by a committee of the Georgetown Lions Club.

A vast amount of products has been submitted for the sale. These range from autos, motorcycles and a trailer to clover and mixed timothy and blue grass hay. A large amount of farm equipment is listed, as well as hundreds of household articles. Plumbing goods also are to be sold. The sale will begin at 10 a. m.

The auctioneers will be "Colonels" Herschel Keller, Covington, Ind.; Robert Craig, Indianola; Nino Damilano, Westville; and Todd Roesch, Georgetown.

A large amount of goods was brought in on the closing day, Monday. For the benefit of a number who have stated that they delayed submitting their lists of articles in time for inclusion in the sale bills, it is announced that such goods may be brought to the sale on the sale day, up to the hour of the start of bidding. Those who have goods to sell need not be afraid of inclement weather, it is stated. In the event of rain or snow, goods may be stored in the Indiailla Canning Co. building just south of the Square.

As was to be expected in view of current livestock marketing conditions, livestock offerings are small. Two Guernsey bulls, however, were listed the first of the week.

Lunch will be served in the nearby Fazio building by the Fellowship class of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

Members of the committee in charge of the sale are: Todd Roesch, chair-Graves, Richard Neild, Walter D. man, Commodore Pribble, Richard Smith and Kenneth E. Lyon.

Clerks for the sale will be R. F. Dukes and B. F. Henderson.

Funeral Thursday For Thomas Peace, Lived in Midway

Death came at midnight March 1, at Vermilion County Nursing Home, to Thomas Peace, 84, who had been bedfast for 14 months. Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon, Thursday, at the Houghton Funeral Home. The Rev. Minnie Sanders will officiate. Burial will be in Georgetown cemetery.

Mr. Peace was born in Kentucky Dec. 1, 1863, a son of Joseph and Irene Peace. He was married to Zenia Allen, who survives. Also surviving are a son, Everett Peace of Midway; two daughters, Mrs. Millie Morgan of Georgetown and Mrs. Agnes Adams of Crown Point, Ind.; 15 grandchildren; 10 great-children; other relatives and friends. Five children preceded him in death.
