Vol. 18 — No. 39 | Georgetown, Vermilion County, Illinois | Friday, July 9, 1948

Corn is growing by leaps and bounds during the hot, humid days. The nights are a little cool for the corn and soybeans, but what nights these are for those of us who call ourselves human beings!

Folks are talking a great deal these days about spending vacations here and there, arguing as to which place is the most desirable vacation spot. This is often the subject of much debate. As a matter of fact there are numerous desirable moderate-priced places available to all in this country. If you have the time and can spend the money, a leisurely trip through the far west is grand. One spot we found, however, that is hard to beat is a place which is readily accessible to residents of this area, and it has the best of vacation advantages. It is that place known as Lartnec Sionilli, which is Central Illinois spelled backwards.

The tune of "You Can't Be True, Dear," popular now in the juke boxes, is a melody of Vienna, composed many years ago; a New York publisher bought the rights from the Viennese composer some time ago and in turn farmed it out to Ken Griffin, Chicago organist, who wanted to put in it records for the ice skating and roller skating rink trade; Jerry Wayne, a one-time popular radio singer, who had lost out, was asked by a New York producer to write words to the melody for some recordings, and in a few weeks he had produced the lyrics, and the song in five weeks had sold a million and a half copies and has been on the Hit Parade ever since.

Perhaps you think the great American sport is baseball. It is often, of course, so designated. But actually, the great American sport is fishing. Count all those who are in baseball parks and then count, if it can be done, those who are on the banks of streams on a summer's day, in rowboats on rivers and lakes, or in rubber boots in the trout streams, and you probably will find that the fishermen outnumber the baseball fans by at least two to one. Folks go to a basebal game for one thing — to see the game. But those who go fishing do so for various reasons. Some go to "get away from it all." Others go because they need a rest, because they are tired, because they want to think, because they want to avoid somebody, to sulk, or to go into seclusion. At any rate, fishing is a good tonic; it's good medicine for jittery nerves, and a soothing dose for ulcerated stomachs . . . And did you ever think of what might have happened if the Maker would have filled the water full of people and the land surface of the earth full of fish? Then we couldn't forget our troubles, shed our cares and rest our tired bodies and minds on the banks of some creek—just fishin'.

We have been thinking of conducting a survey throughout this seetion of the state to find out how many brides ever really read the white Bibles they carry as part of their wedding costumes.

Our teachers who have returned to cram a school year's course or two in eight weeks of summer school at the various colleges and universities are the subject of considerable interest on the part of the other students. It is always of interest to see teachers being taught.

Our Clean Story Club — A motorist had purchased an automobile at a used car lot. After a few weeks he wrote a letter to the salesman as follows:

"Dear Sir — Please repeat what you told me when you sold me my second-hand car, as I am getting very despondent."

Congregational Church Notes

Rev. C. R. Dierlamm, Minister

This is the time of the year for religious picnics. Leaders of any organization find that it takes work and planning to make picnics successful. It isn't just fun to be responsible for children.

We invite parents to go with us for the Sunday School outing to be held on Sunday, July 18, at Hoopeston. The automobiles and bus leave the church at 10 a. m. To bring your child to Sunday School is much better than to send him. A boy or girl will always remember the attitudes of parents. Nothing will ever cause the child to forget. Old age will only emphasize the impressions of eary childhood.

The future of any country depends on the children of the nation. The fine courtesies and Christian graces that are taught in the home are highly respected by the public when children come in contact with the world.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 11, was:

"SACRAMENT"

The Golden Text was:

"The hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him" (John 4: 23).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon were the following from the Bible:

"Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled . . . Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God . . . For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ" (Matt. 5: 6, 8; Gal. 3: 26, 27).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"The baptism of Spirit, washing the body of all the impurities of flesh, signifies that the pure in heart see God and are approaching spiritual Life and its demonstration . . . What we most need is the prayer of fervent desire for growth in grace, expressed in patience, meekness, love, and good deeds . . . The habitual struggle to be always good is unceasing prayer. Its motives are made manifest in the blessings they bring,—blessing which, even if not acknowledged in audible words, attest our worthiness to be partakers of Love" (pp. 241, 4).

Farm Facts

1. Rats begin to breed at two to three months of age, and the period of gestation is about 21 days. The average litter is probably ten, and one female may have from three to four litters a year. That is why it is so important to guard against this rodent and why rat control requires constant attention.

2. Yes. At the Research Farm of the Ralston Purina Company pullets are grown out each month in the year on all types of feeding programs. These tests show that it is possible to grow out pullets for replacements any time during the year and by so doing have ready-to-lay pullets at any season to replace hens which are culled or die.

3. The following should be culled out and slaughtered — never sold for breeding purposes:

1. All buck kids except those from registered, high-producing ancestry.
2. Under-sized doe kids. Cull out the poorest ones and save their feed to do a better job on the rest.
3. Old, unprofitable does who have passed their prime.
4. Milking or dry does with one or both halves of the udder unsound.

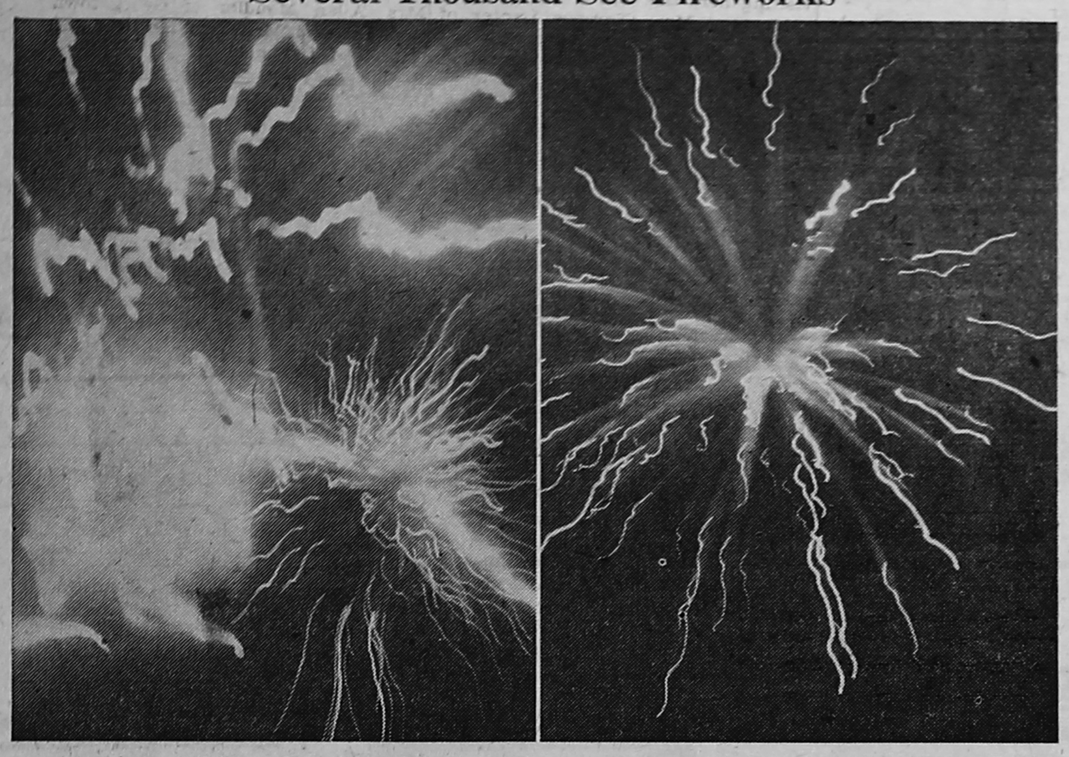
Several Thousand See Fireworks



The accompanying picture shows some of the fireworks in Georgetown City Park Monday night as caught by the camera. A crowd, estimated at about 5000 attended the celebration in the evening, many coming from nearby towns and communities.

The fireworks, furnished by an appropriation from the city funds, included star and jet bombs, aerial bombs, parachute bombs, set pieces and tableaux. The grand finale consisted of the Stars and Stripes in colors and numerous flash bombs.

The fireworks display was handled for the city by Walter Radomski.

A band concert preceded the fireworks.

'The Voice of America'

The recent furor over the State Department's "Voice of America" radio broadcasts is the most serious the program has become involved in thus far. For a long while a considerable minority in Congress has doubted if the broadcasts can do any good. At one time it looked as if either House or Senate might refuse to vote the necessary appropriations to keep the program going. It was saved by Secretary Marshall, who made a strong plea in which he said it was an important adjunct to our foreign policy.

"Voice of America" is beamed by directional radio to a long list of foreign countries, in their languages. The broadcast which recently created a stir in Congress seems to have been extraordinarily critical of this country, at least in part. It was in the form of a travelog, in which two men journeyed through various states and discussed what was going on. Heavy stress, apparently, was laid on real or alleged racial and other inequalities. The author of the script said that taking isolated lines from the context did it an injustice. Whether that is true or not, it looks as if division of responsibility is a very weak link in the "Voice of America" chain. The State Department does not prepare the scripts, but has that done by a broadcasting company. No one in authority, it is indicated, checks them before they are released. In the recent controversy, someone passed the buck to someone else.

The theory back of the "Voice of America" is interesting. The basic plan was to put out entertaining and informative programs that would give foreign listeners — particularly those behind the iron curtain — a more accurate idea of American life and thought than can be gained from their own newspapers and radio, most of which are government controlled. The idea was to reach the rank and file of people, and to show them, among other things, that America is peacable, sympathetic with their problems, and eager to co-operate in solving the world's ills. No one knows how many foreign listeners have actually heard the broadcasts. In some countries, notably the Soviet Union, where citizens caught listening to foreign broadcasts may find themselves in serious difficulty, the number is undoubtedly small. Even so, the program's advocates say, it has been a growing influence.

The future of "Voice of America" remains to be seen. Within the United States, a number of non-governmental activities are being carried on to give Americans themselves a clearer idea of the superiority of a democracy over the socialist and communist systems. There is no end of authoritative information of this kind, but much of it is in long and scholarly monographs which are not widely read. More thought, of course, is being given to reaching the people with ideas and facts which can be quickly assimilated and easily remembered. The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, as an example, has put out a series of charts called "Magic of America," which have been received with much more enthusiasm than was expected. The charts are largely factual in character, and are devoted to the difference in living standards between capitalist America, communist Russia and socialist Britain. The average American wage earner, it is pointed out, could buy six pairs of shoes with a week's earnings, while in Russia his counterpart gets enough for only one shoe. Again in America, an hour's work will pay for six quarts of milk, while in Russia it will buy only a third of one quart. And, despite our housing shortage, we have an average of 410 square feet per person, as against 40 in Russia.

These and many other comparable activities are all part of the war of ideas, which is a relatively new thing in the world. The basic conflicts between nations today are ideological. That is why totalitarian governments always are interested in taking over the press and the radio as a first step in cementing their authority, and to eliminate criticism, no matter how mild. The Russians, for instance, are very proud of the fact that their newspapers have had an astonishing growth in circulation in the last eight or 10 years. One newspaper has said that this was an example of "real freedom" of the press — which consists of putting soviet propaganda into every article.

Despite the fact that we are living in an age when thoughts and words, no less than guns, are weapons, it is doubtful in the minds of most of our taxpayers whether the tremendous cost of the "Voice of America" actually justifies the expenditure. Most citizens undoubtedly feel that we should live our democracy, "sell" our own citizens on it first, and be an example of good living and good citizenship, thus creating a real "Voice of America" for democracy and its better way of life. Much of the broadcasting would be futile. The republic of France, for instance, has a way of spreading its culture without broadcasting it. There are many ways of presenting the attractive standards of living in a democracy.

The Farm Road Situation

The Illinois farm roads programs are many and confusing. Solutions are difficult to find. The farmers backed the bond issues for Illinois' primary system of paved roads. When laws were enacted for those roads, rural residents were told that they would receive help fom the state in constructing and maintaining access to roads once the primary system was built.

Today, more than half of the road district roads are still primitive dirt, it was charged recently by Earl C. Smith of Pike county, former president of the Illinois Agricultural Association, in speaking before a committee of 20 farmers selected by the association to make a farm road survey in the state. There are thousands of unsafe bridges in need of attention. The most serious problem, of course, is that of revenue. The secondary road system is in need of extensive work. Even the state primary road system is in need of much repair.

The State Highway Division, the counties and the cities each are asking for at least one billion dollars. Where does the farm-to-highway road fit into the picture? Rebuilding primary and secondary roads in road districts probably will call for a 20-year program.

Five hundred vehicles a day will cause a good gravel road to become impassable in a short time, the committee was told by Prof. Ellis Danner of the University of Illinois College of Engineering. One thousand vehicles a day will cause the same condition on the thin blacktop roads. One of the biggest steps forward in the improvement of road district roads would be the reorganization of many small districts into larger road districts. Virtually no research has been done on rural roads, but a great deal of research has been done on hard road problems. No money is available to the college of engineering for the study of farm roads.

The stock argument against the use of motor fuel funds on farm roads has been that they bear such a small portion of the traffic. But counts show much more traffic on these roads than has been generally believed. It is necessary that the farmers of the state stand ready to offer constructive suggestions.

Device to Warn Of Recordings in Your Phone Message

If you ever hear a brief, high, almost musical note on your telephone line while you are talking—a sort of gentle "beep" repeated every 15 seconds or so—you will know that the person to whom you are talking has a recording machine which is making a record of your conversation. That announcement was made today by E. R. Prosise, manager here for the Illinois Bell Telephone Co.

The company will shortly apply to the Illinois Commerce Commission for authorization to install warning devices at the subscribers' premises wherever recording machines are known to be used on telephone conversations, according to Mr. Prosise. The warning signal is provided by the telephone company for its customers' protection in known cases. The company will not manufacture the recording devices. It will install and maintain only the automatic tone warning device, for which there will be a monthly charge to the user.

The Federal Communications Commission has authorized the use of recording devices connected to a subscriber's telephone, provided the telephone company is notified by the user so that the warning signal may become part of the connection. When the machine is connected, the sound goes over the line automatically every 12 to 18 seconds.

"If you don't want a record made of a conversation," Mr. Prosise said, "ask the person with whom you are talking to disconnect the recording machine." After Aug. 2, it will be unlawful for anyone to use a recording machine without a telephone without using the equipment which sends the "beep signal" over the line.

Parcel Post by Air

Parcel post by air has become a reality, having been authorized in the closing sessions of the last Congress. Estimates are that this will effect a saving from one to six days on the delivery of packages. The postal authorities are looking forward to revenues of $40 million in the first year of its operation.

In the event that heavier parcel post shipments could be stimulated by the new development, views are expressed that these shipments could be reflected in orders for additional airplanes. The movement of parcel post by air will do much toward improving the financial position of the airlines.

The new service is expected to go into effect Sept. 1. Rates will range from 55 to 80 cents a pound. The theory is that, as the volume of air parcel post is increased, prices can be revised downward. But postal officials have been instructed by Congress to keep the new air service on a pay-as-it-goes basis. Postoffice Department authorities, it is stated, hope that air parcel post also will help lift air mail payments out of the subsidy class.

Some Business Information

Here are some of the significant items of business as gathered from press dispatches:

Unprecedented production by refineries has all but eliminated the possibility of a gasoline shortage this summer and has minimized the threat of a winter fuel oil shortage . . . Studebaker Corp. in the first six months this year produced the largest number of automobiles and trucks for any similar period in its history . . . Steel mills are working 96 to 97 per cent of capacity instead of 100 because of a hand-to-mouth situation in scrap, ore and coke . . . The world sugar output will be within 2 per cent of pre-war levels this year but a surplus will exist because many countries won't be able to afford their quotas . . . A 100 per cent rise in farmers' cash income from prewar levels has proved a fertile market for electrical manufacturers . . . Sales of phonograph records are off 40 per cent from 1947 levels . . . The demand for meat has reduced the number of milk cows in this country from 26.1 million to 23.5 million within three years, a loss of 2.6 milion . . . New dwelling units placed under construction under FHA financing programs total 131,346 for the first five months of this year—72,482 more than in the corresponding five months of 1947; work has been started on the 2 millionth postwar house, according to the construction industry; conversely, the building of new plants has begun to taper off . . . The only serious weakness in the economy at present is consumer resistance to "soft" goods . . . In its race to adjour, Congress continued the wartime potato subsidy, even though potatoes remain a glut on the market . . . Almost new Fords are selling for as much as $3300 on used car lots.

What to Leave Out

Of interest to the readers of newspapers as well as to those in the newspaper profession are the views recently expressed by Mary Sallie McKee, a member of the staff of a Rolla, N. D., newspaper. These views were expressed in a recent letter to the Publishers' Auxiliary, a newspaper trade publication, and the letter, in part, follows:

"Your series of articles on what should—or should not—be printed, interests me as a reporter because every profession is faced with the question, 'Should I be honest, or should I take the easy way out?' In my opinion such articles of a controversial nature should be printed for seven different reasons . . . The reasons are:

"1. The Courts are supported by taxpayers who have a right to know how their money is being spent.

"2. Publicity is one of the best known crime preventatives.

"3. It is a violation of justice to publish one legal matter and keep another one out.

"4. No unhappy incident was ever kept from many people's knowledge by being 'kept out of the paper.'

"5. An ethical conscientious publisher is not publishing a 'hurrah' sheet, he is publishing modern history.

"6. Editors are silly to keep out any story in the vain hope of having a 'friend.' What does it profit you to keep one friend when, by suppressing news, you invariably lose hundreds of other friends.

"7. Why make life harder? Every editor who . . . suppresses an unpleasant story, has that unpleasant hurdle to jump time and time again.

Personally, I believe in sparing children in legal news stories. Children are not the real offenders."

If we find the job where we can be of use, we are hitched to the star of the world and move with it.

Weekly Review and Farm Outlook Letter

Extension Service in Agricuture and Home Economics University of Illinois College of Agriculture, Urbana

URBANA — Physiologists may be interested in how much a person can eat. But farmers are more concerned about how much consumers are able and willing to pay for their food. This is the reason many farmers study industrial and labor conditions almost as closely as they do their own farm operations.

There has been a high-speed hum in the nation's factories in recent weeks. In May the index of undustrial production reached 192. This figure tells us that our factories (and mines) are turning out 92 per cent more products than in the average of the base period years 1935-39. The May rate of production was only two points below the peacetime record of 194 reached last February.

So far in 1948 the trend of industrial activity has been about the same as in 1947. That is, high activity at the beginning of the year was followed by a moderate decline and recovery. This year, however, the recovery appears to have started three months ealier than in 1947.

May was also a month of high-level employment. Some 44.5 million employes had jobs in non-agricutural establishments. This was one and one-fourth million more than were at work on non-agricultural jobs a year earlie.

Business Optimism High

Business optimism seems to be at a new high. One reason for this is the rather unexpectedly high level of activity in the construction industry. Activity in this industry is an especially important factor in general economic conditions. There are two reasons: (1) The industry employs, directly and indirectly, a very large number of people; and (2) the industry tends to run in a cycle, with rather long periods of high activity separated by several years of little construction.

Just now a lot of famiiles want new homes. More important, they seem to be able, or at least willing to try, to pay for them. Expenditures for private home building are running about 60 per cent greater than last year.

One type of building activity has decreased steadily during the past 18 months. That is the construction of industrial buildings. The actual volume of such construction has dropped about one-half since the peak late in 1946. Apparently most manufacturers figure that their plants are now large enough to produce about all they can sell during the next few years.

Report on the Hog Situation

Hog prices this week returned to the high levels of last January. The price increase since the low point in May is more than 37 per cent. This price advance has been both large and rapid. It has led to some talk about $35 hogs within 60 days. Such expectations probably are based on the fact that hog prices usually work upward from June to August.

On the other hand, the price increase from June to August this year may be less than usual. There are several reasons to support this point of view. A large seasonal price increase already has occurred. Storage stocks of pork are relatively large. The number of hogs to be marketed this fall is larger than was expected two weeks ago. More lower grade and lower priced beef will become available in the next few weeks. Consumers may balk at paying greatly increased prices for pork.

PIG CROP REPORT — Twice each year the government makes a report on the hog situation. These reports are released in June and December. The June, 1948, report is based on a survey of 113,000 farms and ranches. It shows the number of hogs over six months of age on farms, the number of pigs saved this past spring, and the number of sows expected to be kept for fall pigs.

The number of hogs over six months old on farms June 1 was 23.4 million head. That is 2 per cent less than the number on farms a year earlier. The 2 per cent reduction was for the nation as a whole. In the corn belt the number of hogs over six months of age was down 6 per cent.

The nation's farmers saved 51.4 million pigs this past spring. That is only 2 per cent less than the number saved last year. A larger reduction had been expected, but farmers saved more pigs per sow than usual.

Farmers expect to have 4.9 million sows for fall pigs. That is almost exacty the same number that farrowed last fall. At the same time, it is 8 per cent less than the average number farrowing during the preceding ten years.

The devotion of thought to an honest achievement makes the achievement possible.

Good Fishing in Northern Indiana

Vacation-bound fishermen who are short on time should not overlook the opportunities offered by Wawasee Lake in Indiana, according to the Chicago Motor Club's Touring bureau.

The largest lake in Indiana, it is kept well stocked with large and small-mouth back bass, pike, pickerel crappies, bluegills, sunfish and perch.

Boats, live bait and guides are available at the lake. Other recreatiaonal facilities include tennis courts, bathing beaches and four golf courses. Housekeeping cottages are available as well as accomodations at the Spink-Wawasee Hotel.

Three lakes touch the city limits of Warsaw, while others are easily accessible.

Pakagon State Park is located on the shores of Lake James and Snow Lake, six miles north of Angola on U. S. 27. The park affords camp and picnic areas as well as facilities for fishing, boating and bathing.

Kundred Gladiola Farm, three miles northwest of Goshen, has 125 acres planted to gladiola and visitors are welcome. Exhibits pertaining to Goshen's local history are featured by the Elkhart County Historical Society. in the court house.

Elkhart is noted for its 13 large band instrument factories, which produce about 60 per cent of the world's output.

LAW ON THE FARM

By H. W. HANNAH
Associate Professor of Agricultural Economics, University of Illinois

Surface waters — Surface waters are those waters which spread or diffuse themselves over the ground, as distinguished from streams or bodies of water having definable beds and channels. Water that runs in hollows or ravines only when it rains are also classed as surface waters. Rains and melting snow are the usual sources, although flood waters that spread out over low ground and do not run back into the stream channel are sometimes classed as surface waters.

Authorities on drainage have pointed out that "the draining and disposing of these waters has been a constantly increasing source of litigation between neighboring possessors of land during the past 90 years. Whenever a tract of land is graded, cultivated or otherwise improved, a swamp drained, a structure erected or a highway or a railroad constructed, the flow of surface waters is likely to be altered, with resulting harm to some possessor of nearby land."

Under the rules of law developed by Illinois courts, an upper owner can not alter the point at which surface waters enter the land of a lower owner, nor can a lower owner prevent the natual flow of surface water across his land. However, there is a tendency for courts to weigh the comparative good that will result if an owner is or is not allowed to accelerate the flow of surface water from his land. The courts have said that a man should be encouraged to improve his land, and that he is within his rights if he facilitates the escape of surface water without causing undue injury to adjoining owners. It is well established, however, that a higher owner cannot store up surface water and release it to the damage of a lower owner, change its natural point of entry on lower land, bring it in from another watershed or pollute it. In any case it is desirable for adjoining owners to agree on the disposal of surface water and, if their farms are in a drainage district, to fit their farm drainage construction into the plan of the district.

Poultry Day July 21 To Be 'All-Industry'

(Special)

URBANA — The first Illinois "All-Industry" Poultry Day will be held on the University of Illinois campus July 21, according to H. M. Scott, head of the poultry section of the department of animal science.

Illinois poultry flock owners, processors, feed dealers and hatcherymen are urged to attend this meeting, which will be devoted to current and future problems of the poultry industry within the state.

"This is the first time that an all-industry poultry day has been planned by the College of Agriculture," Scott says. "It is our hope that all segments of the industry will be represented and will take part in the program."

The meeting will open at 10 o'clock, daylight time, in Davenport Hall on the campus. Morning sessions will be devoted to efficient rations for poultry, marketing trends and consumer preferences and a look at the future of the poultry industry in Illinois. Representative flock owners, breeders, feed dealers, hatcherymen and processors will discuss common problems during a morning panel.

Afternoon sessions will bring out results of current research being conducted by the Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station, and there will be a tour of the University Poultry Farm.

Power Co. Files in Stock Conversion

The Illinois Power Co. has filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission a registration statement relating to the call for redemption of its outstanding 5 per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock, each share of which is convertible into two shares of common stock, and the issue and sale to underwriters of the number of shares of common stock equal to the number of shares not taken by preferred stockholders upon exercise of the conversion privilege.

The company has not yet entered into any agreement with underwriters. Its ability to do so will depend upon market conditions at the time of the negotiations, which must await certain approvals of the Securities and Exchange Commission. No call for redemtion of the 5 per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock has as yet been made, and none will be made until it is determined whether the number of shares of common stock issuable upon conversion can be underwritten.

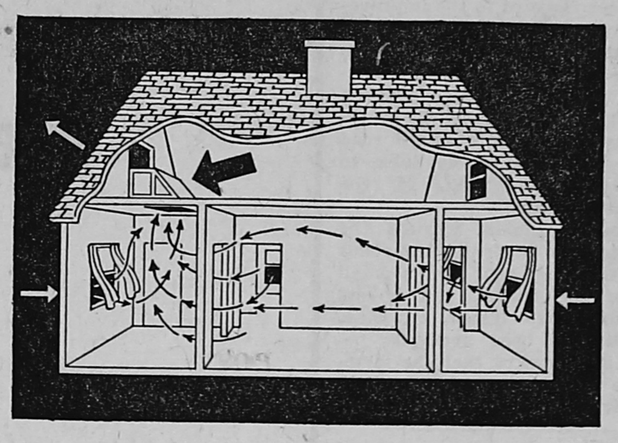
Cool comfort all summer long with a
NIGHT-COOLING FAN



HOW IT WORKS. When the summer heat beats down on the roof of your house, it heats up the air in your attic—to as much as 130°.

• When the sun sets, the outside temperature goes down—but the trapped heat in your attic may hold its temperature as high as 110°—radiating heat to your sleeping rooms throughout the night.

• A night-cooling fan blows out the hot attic air, draws cool night air in and circulates it throughout the rooms in your house, lowering temperatures and bringing cool, restful sleeping comfort.

• For houses, fans are quickly installed in the attic. For apartments and offices special window models are installed almost as easily as plugging into an electric socket.

SIMPLE TO INSTALL, ECONOMICAL TO USE, A NIGHT-COOLING FAN BRINGS COOL COMFORT RIGHT NOW AND FOR YEARS TO COME.

You—and every member of your family—can "sleep like a baby" during sweltering hot weather—if you install a night-cooling fan.

Installed in your attic—or window—it blows the hot air out, draws the cool night air in—fills your rooms with coolness to bring comfort and restful sleep.

The sooner you act, the sooner you can enjoy restful cool comfort. SEE YOUR APPLIANCE DEALER NOW.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS FOR VETERANS

This is another in a series of questions and answers regarding the rights of ex-servicemen and their families, as answered by Howard Bond, Veterans Employment Representative, Illinois State Employment Service, 220 N. Vermilion St., Danville. In this service, theISES attempts to answer questions most frequently asked by ex-servicemen and women.

Question: When should I apply for prosthetic service?

Answer: You can apply for prosthetic service at any time after discharge or separation.

Question: Does the VA itself lend money under the GI Bill?

Answer: No, you borrow from banks, building and loan associations, public and private lending agencies or even from individuals. The VA guarantees or insures payment to the lend of part of the loan.

Question: I believe that I am entitled to disability compensation because of an injury I received in service. Where and when do I apply for this pension?

Answer: You should file a claim for disability compensation with the Contact Representative of the VA in the nearest Veterans Administration office. You may file a claim for compensation at any time during your life. If the disability for which you are receivinng compensation gets worse, you may claim an increase in the amount of compensation.

Question: When and where do I apply for burial allowances for my nephew, an orphan, who was killed in an accident after his discharge from the service?

Answer: Application for burial allowances should be made to the nearest Veterans Administration office within two years from the death of the veteran.
