The Westville News

Vol. 19 — No. 41 Georgetown, Vermilion County, Illinois Friday, July 22, 1949

Folks are getting a trifle tense and occasionally irritable by the long drawn-out heat wave. The thing to do is to keep cool and hold all tempers and dispositions under control, except the happy ones. Let your sunny disposition go as far as it likes.

There has been talk of a Newcomers' Club to be organized here to extend welcomes and good wishes to the many who have moved in our midst from other places in the last few years. A fine idea, if someone will start it and others will find time to co-operate.

Danville had a flash rainstorm Wednesday night, which let go nearly six inches of rainfall; we had no flash rainstorm, but we had the lightning flashes . . . Motorists, inclined to speed through town, now take a second look when they see the Westville officers in uniform—blue and gold caps, blue trousers and neat tan shirts; a uniform has a powerful effect on the wrongdoer; incidentally, the metropolitan press had a good picture of our handsome police officers and mayor; unfortunately, the special officers were not included . . . A number of our growers have developed a flair for raising fine tomatoes just as the price dropped for the canned variety this season . . . About 75 arrests have been made in the last few weeks by the local police in the city campaign against speedsters, drunken drivers and other traffic violators.

We might all be successful, if we followed the advice we give the other fellow.

There are two good reasons why people don't mind their own business. They either haven't a mind or a business.

The guest arose to leave, remarking, "Well, good night. Hope I haven't kept you up too late." "Not at all," replied his host. "We would have been getting up soon anyway."

Some visitors were being shown through an insane asylum. They inquired of their guide what method was used to discover those who were sufficiently recovered to leave.

Guide: "Well, we have a big trough of water and we turn on the tap and tell the inmates to bail the water with pails until they have emptied the trough."

Visitor: "What does that prove?"

Guide: "Well, anyone that isn't crazy shuts off the tap."

Our Clean Story Club—A driverless car rolled down the street in front of a grocery store. The grocer rushed out and pulled the emergency brake of the auto. Just then a man walked out from behind the car.

"Is this your car?" the grocer asked.

"Yes," the man replied.

"Well, I stopped it," said the grocer.

"Yes, I know," was the answer. "I was pushing it."

Bee Line Losses Reported in Move For Higher Fares

Bus Company Presents Its Case to I.C.C.

The Bee Line Transit Corp. was represented by Attorney Thomas C. Stifler of Danville at a hearing before the Illinois Commerce Commission, Tuesday, at Springfield, when he presented to the commission a statement of company losses for each month during the past six months, ranging from $340 in April to $813 in June, the figures showed. This is the only one of the company's nine properties that is operating at a loss, it was stated. The others are self supporting, according to the statements, and have to help carry the burden of the Danville-Georgetown line. With continued loss this line may be eliminated it was said, or the schedules changed to run fewer buses at wider intervals.

The company is seeking to raise the fares between Danville and Georgetown on a zone basis. It proposes advances of 5 to 25 cents, with only fares above 10 cents to be affected. The present rates were adopted in 1936, when costs of operation were 15.45 cents a mile. Since then costs have risen to 31.09 cents a mile, the company states.

The commission did not act on the rate proposal Tuesday.

The company operates ground service to the airports at St. Louis, Mo.; Dayton, O.; Columbus, O.; Tulsa, Okla.; Cairo, Ill.; Centralia, Ill.; Starsburg, Tenn., and Cape Girardeau, Mo. They employ several hundred persons throughout the system. The company is known as the Airlines Transit Corp., in the other cities. Dominic Giacoma of Westville is president.

Mr. Giacoma points out that Westville is his home town and he has made a special effort to give the best possible service to the patrons here with modern buses comparable with metropolitan areas and with service spaced at frequent intervals. It is hoped that the increased rate will be granted so that the present quality of service can be continued.

Georgetown to Take Bids for Police Car

A start was made on the purchase by the City of Georgetown of a police automobile when the city council Tuesday night voted unanimously to advertise for bids for the police car. The sealed bids will be received by the city clerk, Mrs. Florence Campbell, up to 8 p.m. Tuesday evening, Aug. 2.

Many have felt for a long time that this is a necessary step and that a police car will much more than pay its way in enabling the police officers to maintain control more adequately over speeding and other traffic violations. Motion to advertise for bids was made by Ald. Smith, seconded by Ald. Patterson.

After some discussion by Mayor Ivan Rucker and members of council, it was agreed to advertise for a black, 4-door, standard-type sedan, with heater and defroster. A radio is not to be included, and the present siren being used by Police Chief Bert Jenkins will be retained.

Congregational Church Notes

Rev. C. R. Dierlamm, Minister

We are put into this world to learn a great many things that will help us. To be sure the mistakes that we make unwillingly will count for the most in our behalf. Those mistakes we bring upon ourselves by sheer stubborness are the hardest to untangle.

The best way out of the whole difficulty that leads us up and onward is to take the road of enthusiastic Christian living. The people who use their heads make the fastest progress. An education by way of hard knocks, or through class room study, makes possible the smallest area for mistakes. In fact, an education makes possible the smallest burial ground for mistakes. The man who knows and knows that he knows is the man that does not need to experiment a hundred times to find a solution to a problem. The reason for this is that he has made a specific habit of continual thinking and wishful doing.

A record yield of oats is reported this year on the farm of John Trapp in McKendree township, east of Westville. The yield averaged 72.7 bushels per acre of Clinton oats in a 33-acre field. The grain was of excellent quality.

The total yield for the field was 2415 bushels. The field had been treated with 200 pounds of 0-12-12 fertilizer per acre before sowing time. Average yield per acre of oats this season for most of the farms in this vicinity was 35 to 40 bushels per acre.

Mr. Trapp's farming operations cover about 330 acres. The remainder of the acreage is about equally divided between soybeans, alfalfa and corn, which are on the farm rotation program. Hunters' Paradise Disappears

Anyone who has lived in this area for many years will tell you that a long tie ago this part of the country was a hunter's paradise. Old timers have reported that for years, wild turkeys were so abundant that at night the limbs of the trees in the heavily wooded areas hereabouts would bend low towards the ground with the weight of those roosting birds.

There was wild game of all kinds, even during the boyhood days of residents now scarcely more than past middle age.

But when man came, many of the wild animals moved away. Towns and cities were not for them. But after awhile, when man settled himself into the landscape, and his towns became a part of it, the animals gradually crept back. They were wiser than when man first came—the unwise had perished, and only the generations of the more cautious survived — and adapted themselves to his peculiar ways. The animals which once had been free to roam in daylight became fond of twilight when no shape is clear and a beast may move like a shadow into the protection of the shadows.

But others, like the squirrels, came boldly into towns and parks and found man not so terrible after all. Rabbits came into the environs of man and developed a taste for garden products. Birds have become more tame, especially in rural communities and in and near the smaller towns. Robins and quail, mourning doves and swallows maintain a standoff friendship to man.

For many years, the American Indian lived by hunting. There is a saying that an Indian never took more game than he could use. There are too many hunters of today who, with the typical impatience of man, are never content until they have bagged everything in sight, never apparently reaching a point of satisfaction. Fortunately, our game laws guard against the inroads of the greedy and impatient hunter, who is not sufficiently satisfied to benefit by the sport of hunting and a contact with outdoor life. This area probably will never be the hunters' paradise it once was, but some day we hope to see hunting become a part of the enjoyment of nature so that we can still maintain friendly relations with the wild life that trusts the residents of the less crowded areas.

Draft Law Still in Effect

Many persons apparently do not understand that the draft law is in operation in the United States. Registration of young men at 18 years of age is definitely required under the Selective Service Act of 1948, which was passed under pressure of the administration at Washington. Those between 18 and 26 must register.

The young man who becomes 18 is required to register at a local board office within five days of the date of his 18th birthday, but if he happens to be away from home he need not return. He may register at the nearest local board convenient to him and the record will be sent to the local board having jurisdiction, even though it is in another state.

After he registers, it is mandatory that a registrant keep his local board informed of any change in his address or change in status. This applies after he becomes 26 as well as before, according to Col. Paul G. Armstrong, Illinois state director of Selective Service.

"The obligation to register," Col. Armstrong says, "is a continuing obligation and must be fulfilled regardless of whether men are being inducted into the armed forces under the Selective Service Act. The obligation to register is imposed by the Act on every male, citizen or resident, in the United States between the ages of 18 and 26, with only the general exception of members of the armed forces on active duty and certain aliens."

Persons who have planned trips outside the United States still are required to obtain permits from their local board.

It is well for young men to get information from their draft boards even before they reach their 18th birthdays. Many are completing one phase of their education or are laying plans to carry education into another field, such as college or special training, and they may find many questions arising that pertain to Selective Service. As long as the draft law is in operation, it will continue to affect the future of our young men.

Theology and Agriculture

The idea has long persisted, in city as well as country, that the worker with the land is, in a special way, a worker with God. He has to do with soils and seeds and seasons, and in all such natural things the hand of God is more apparent than the hand of man.

Down in Nigeria, where Anglicans, Scotch Presbyterians and Methodists are joining forces in a rural development project at Asaba, mission workers are attempting to push this idea further. They are for giving "clear expression to the inter-relation of theology and agriculture." Already they have come up with some thoughts that are worth pondering as the farmer rides his tractor, and the fruit-grower sorts his apples, and the cattleman trucks his steers to market.

There is the thought that good husbandry is entirely and unavoidably religious. Therefore, exploitation or spoilation of soil or stock is sin against the natural order and against God, whose it all is. And it follows from this that the training of a minister for service at home or abroad must equip him to lead, to advise and admonish his people, as he tries to keep them from falling into the sins of bad husbandry.

"Modern agriculture has neglected this fact," the statement concludes, "and has sought to put asunder what God has joined, to its own detriment and that of religion." And we might add that religion, too, has often forgotten, as good people have let their own problems of prices and markets and taxes blind them to the world's need, when population grows at the rate of 20,000,000 persons a year, and the food resources are being used wastefully.

Home Cooling

Years ago, we believed that nothing could be done about the hot weather. We built our homes with heating systems, but in summer, despite heat and humidity, we continued to "sweat it out" by sleeping outdoors, dragging bed clothing here and there looking for a breeze, or just suffering in sleepless silence. Many are doing that today.

Many houses nowadays, however, are being insulated and ventilated with systems as well conceived and engineered as are the heating systems. Cooling fans are used in great variety. Exhaust fans are available for night cooling, there are the attic types to cool the whole house, and the type that fits into windows. The exhaust fans drive the hot air out and by the same action bring in the cool night air, which is taking advantage of nature's air conditioning system. The cost ordinarily is no more than that of operating a radio.

Until air conditioning becomes so popularized and reduced in price that it can be a part of every home, the means at hand add greatly to comfort in the hot months of the year. In the future, some sort of cooling will be standard home equipment, just as are light, heat and water today.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS FOR VETERANS

This is another in a series of questions and answers regarding the rights of ex-servicemen and their families, as answered by Howard Bond, Veterans Employment Representative, Illinois State Employment Service, 220 N. Vermilion St., Danville. In this service, the ISES at-

Question—Is there any way I may get a waiver or an adjustment on the amount I owe Veterans Administration on my defaulted GI loan? The default resulted through no fault of mine.

Answer—A committee on waivers and compromises has been established in each VA regional office and at central office in Washington, D. C., with authority to determine in each case whether all or part of the amount paid in settlement of a veteran's defaulted loan is to be waived, collected or otherwse adjusted. The central office committee will have original jurisdiction of cases involving more than $2,500; the regional office committees, in cases below $2,500.

Question—As a World War II veteran, will I have to pay a fee to have someone represent me in my claim for benefits before the VA,

Answer—If you are represented by an official of an accredited veteran organization or the American Red Cross, there is no fee. If you are represented by a lawyer or agent who has been admitted to practice before VA, such attorney or agent is permitted to charge $10 in an original claim, or $2 in a claim for increased benefits. The government will pay this fee out of the veteran's benefit and for this reason the veteran should not pay the attorney or agent direct.

Get 'Experiment' Yields, Says Expert

(Special)

URBANA — You can get "experiment station" corn yields for your area by following thoroughly the "experiment station" formula of limestone - phosphate - potash - legumes - manure.

As proof, M. L. Mosher, Illinois College of Agriculture farm management specialist, points to four farms in four counties, which averaged 90 to 94 bushels of corn to the acre for all corn grown during the 10 years, 1939-48. This was about equal to the yield on College of Agriculture experiment fields on the same soil types.

All four farms topped 100 bushels an acre for four or five of the 10 years, and one of them raised 123 bushels an acre in 1948. These figures come from the men's Farm Bureau Farm Management Service records, kept in co-operation with the College of Agriculture.

Ninety bushels an acre was the lowest average 10-year yield, Mosher said. This farmer sold some hybrid seed corn. His yields were cut down a little because he planted thin to get good quality seed.

Two of the farms on gently rolling land have maintained 5-year rotations of corn, corn, oats. alfalfa, and alfalfa for the 10 years. Grass waterways have helped to prevent serious erosion on these farms.

The other two farms on level to gently rolling land used 4-year rotations of corn, corn, oats and alfalfa. All four farms sowed various amounts of sweet, red and alsike clovers, and brome-grass with the alfalfa. Most of the crops grown on these farms were fed to beef cattle and hogs.

"You may have to use the 'experiment station' system of limestone, phosphate, potash, legumes, manure for 5 to 10 years before you get 'experiment station' yields," Mosher said. "But the extra crops certainly are worth it, and your soil erosion losses are much smaller, too."

THE GREATEST MONUMENT IN THE WORLD
I Corinthians 11:23-29

By Kenneth C. Brch

"A monument is anything that perpetuates the memory of a person or an event." There are many monuments in the world. The Statue of Liberty is a monument to freedom, of a freedom loving people. There has been much discussion of the monument to the greatest person who ever lived. This is the Lord's Supper, a memorial (monument) to Jesus Christ the greatest person who ever lived. He says: "Do this in memory of me."

It is a fitting monument because our Lord commanded it. It is observed by only those who love Him and it is fitting in that it is spiritual rather than material.

It is lasting, for although monuments of stone would have perished that Lord's Supper is still fresh and new as in the beginning when it was instituted.

It is a truthful monument for although many human monuments bear false statements, this sacred monument bears powerful witness to the truth of the Gospel. This witness is given in spite of a preacher's false message from the pulpit; in spite of a congregation's indifference. The Gospel is preached by the Lord's Supper. "For in so doing ye proclaim the Lord's death 'till he come."

Suppose a mother dies to save her son's life. Her dying request is that he might visit her grave at regular stated intervals. Think of his gross ingratitude if he should refuse. Let us keep the feast in memory of Him.—Based on material by Burris Butler, Editor of the Christian Standard.

LAW ON THE FARM

By H. W. HANNAH

Associate Professor of Agricultural Economics, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois

LIFE TENANCIES

Many Illinois farms are held by persons who have only a life interest in the land. For most purposes these "life tenants," as the law designates them, have the same rights in the use of the farm as "fee simple" owners. For example, the life tenant has the right to possession and income from the farm, may rent it under any terms he sees fit, may make improvements and act generally as other owners. But there are certain limitations on life ownership that are important, not only to the life tenant but also to third parties who deal with him and to the "remaindermen"—those who will take the farm at the death of the life tenant.

These are some of the limitations:

1. The life tenant cannot sell, mortgage or encumber the farm, although he may dispose of his life interest or the life interest may be sold to satisfy his debts. However, the "fee" or reversionary interest—that which will eventually go to heirs or designated remaindermen—cannot be affected legally by any acts of the life tenant.

2. The life tenant cannot destroy the real estate or permanent improvements without being liable to the remaindermen, unless the legal instrument creating the life estates excuses him from liability for "waste."

The life tenant cannot destroy or cut down economic species of timber trees unless they are at the proper stage for cutting and would deteriorate in value if not harvested.

4. Coal, oil or mineral deposits belong to the remaindermen, and not to the life tenant. However, the life tenant is entitled to rents which accrue from any such deposits developed prior to the commencement of the life tenancy.

5. A farm tenant who rents land from a life tenant, and who does not have the signatures of remaindermen or revisioners on his lease, loses his right to the farm on the death of the life tenant. He may mature and harvest growing crops and take his share, but his lease is terminated. Rent would be payable to the holder of the fee and to the representative of the life tenant proportionately according to the portion of the lease year which had expired. A farm tenant should know what kind of legal ownership his landlord has before he takes the farm.

Most life tenants of farm land are women whose husbands left wills giving them a life estate, the remainder going to the children. Also, when a surviving husband or wife takes dower in the property of the deceased he or she takes only a life interest.

If You Want Cantaloupes For Next Winter, Select Well, Then Put in Storage Locker

(Special)

URBANA — Time was when we thought of cantaloupes as summertime fare only. Today homemakers are tucking them into lockers and deep-freeze units and using them in salads and fruit cups the year around.

Food research specialists at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture have had good results in their work on freezing cantaloupe. The fruit is easy to prepare, and when directions are followed carefully, much of its fine flavor and color are preserved.

For freezing, select firm, ripe cantaloupes and remove the seeds and the rind. Cut the meat into small wedges and pack it into the containers. Cover with a 40 percent syrup and freeze at once. To prepare the syrup, use the proportion of one cup of sugar to one and one-fourth cups of water. The sugar may be dissolved in the water by stirring, but if you heat the mixture to dissolve it more quickly, be sure to cool the syrup thoroughly be fore you pour it over the melon.

In selecting cantaloupes, give attention to the scar at the stem end of the fruit. It should be slightly sunken, smooth and well calloused. The vein-like netting should be full and rounded and stand up from the melon about one-sixteenth inch. If the melon is well ripened, the netting will be coarse. Color, too, is important. Look for a background of light yellow rather than green.

Cannery Registers Help For Opening of Tomato Season

Registration for employment for the 1949 tomato canning season was started Monday morning by the Indiailla Canning Co. at the plant on S. Main St., Georgeton. By Tuesday noon, more than 60 applicants had registered. The company has employed more than 100 during past canning seasons.

Omer R. East, owner-manager of the plant, expects the season to open for actual canning operations by about Aug. 15. The opening date last year was on Aug. 16. The season, unless shortened by frost, usually continues through late October, and sometimes into November.

Mr. East has arranged to call a meeting of the growers soon to discuss the question of whether the tomatoes are to be graded at the cannery. While the yield for at least half of the acreage is excellent, there are some acreages that will not be heavy producers this season.

The acreage is considerably smaller this year than for the last several years. The lower prices offered for the canned goods have not tended to make production attractive to growers or the cannery. Acreage could have been extended this year if more solicitations had been made, it is stated. The Georgetown acreage has spread out considerably in the last several years.

The hot weather apparently has caused no damage to the tomato crop. Plenty of moisture helped the plants to withstand the severe heat of the last month. Both rain and humidity have been of service to the crop.

Indications are that the tomatoes will be of excellent quality this year.

OLIVET NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Ralston Hessler and son, Tommy, of Decatur, were weekend guests of friends here and they also attended services at the Church of the Nazarene.

The WCTU will meet at 2 p.m. Friday at the home of Mrs. Pearl Blacketer for the monthly meeting.

Word has been received that Mrs. Carrie Greer and daughters have moved to Decatur. They were formerly of Olivet.

Mrs. Virginia and Zeptha Blacketer of St. Francisville, Ill., are visiting Mrs. Pearl Blacketer.

ROGERS - BURTLE

Mrs. Charles Lewis and daughter, Miss Helen Lewis, attended the recent marriage of their niece and cousin, Miss Mary Margaret Burtle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Burtle, and William Rogers, son of Mrs. Helen Barringer, all of Gary, Ind., at 8 p.m. June 16, at City Methodist Church in Gary.

The Rev. Benjamin Rice, D.D., read the double ring ceremony before a setting of flowers and candelabra in the presence of 100 guests.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlor for all guests.

The Burtles are former residents of Georgetown and for a time Mary Margaret attended Georgetown Grade School.

Following her graduation from Horace Mann High School, Gary, in 1940, and from the University of Chicago in 1944, Miss Burtle was employed as hostess for United Air Lines in San Francisco. For the past two years she has been employed by the Juvenile Court of San Francisco and will continue in this work for the present.

Mr. Rogers, a graduate of Horace Mann High School, served in the Navy during the war. He has completed his second year's work at Gary College. In the near future he will leave for San Francisco, where Mr. and Mrs. Rogers will reside, and where he will begin his junior year at the University of California.

Cecil Lanter, 53, Former Resident, Dies in Herrin, Ill.

Cecil Lanter, 53, former Georgetown and Catlin resident, died Thursday, July 14, in Herrin, Ill. He had been ill for some time with cancer. Funeral services were Sunday afternoon in Herrin, with burial in Benton, Ill.

Mr. Lanter was born in Catlin, Aug. 8, 1895, a son of John D. and Myrtle Bell Hancock Lanter. On July 2, 1918, he was united in marriage with Miss Verla Robison.

Surviving are the widow of Herrin; a daughter, Mrs. Delores Parker of Mt. Georgetown Lions Install Officers at Night Picnic

Newly elected officers of the Georgetown Lions Club were installed in the cool night air and in the light of the stars Monday night following a picnic supper on the Double-X Cabin grounds just south of town.

The supper was potluck except for fried chicken and corn on the cob prepared by Elmo Snook, a member of the club, at his cafe. Wives, friends and families of the members were guests. It was the annual Ladies Night—installation event.

Carroll Crawford, who has closed a successful year as president, placed the members and guests at their ease and in good humor and presented one of the early past presidents of the local organization, B. F. Henderson, who conducted the brief installation rites, which made Mr. Graves the eleventh president of the club. The Georgetown club was organized in 1940.

Several officers who were not present were installed in absentia. President Graves called a directors' meeting following the campfire ceremony.

Soybean Association Asks for Support

(Special)

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — "Vermillion County's soybean producers are being asked to invest in the American Soybean Association this fall so that the Association might carry on a program of getting more money for soybeans for the producer," announces J. E. Johnson, Champaign.

"The plan for financing the program for soybeans is similar to the program for cotton sponsored by the National Cotton Council. The American Soybean Association is asking the buyer to collect a small sum—one-fifth cent per bushel or 20c per 100 bushels—on the soybeans he purchases',' Johnson said.

Mr. Johnson stressed the fact that although the amount is small where each grower is concerned, it is the total from all growers that will give the association the funds to get more per bushel for soybeans for the producer.

He pointed out that if the Association in one year succeeded in increasing the price of soybeans only 5c per bushel, it would mean $162,920 additional income to the producers of soybeans in Vermillion county. This amount would be a return on an investment of $6,516 for the county on the basis of the 1948 yield of 3,258,400 bushels.

"The need for such a program could not be any greater than at the moment," he said. "With the prospects for acreage control on corn and other midwest crops being what they are, this area will need soybeans as a further cash crop if the price is favorable enough. Favorable prices will come only through joint efforts of the producers themselves in support of the American Soybean Association."

Paul C. Hughes, field service director for the Association, is in Illinois at the present time contacting handlers and asking them to agree to collect 20c on each 100 bushels which they purchase. The success of the program depends upon the co-operation of the handler in collecting this investment from the producers with a minimum of expense," Mr. Johnson added.

SPRINGFIELD — The state fairgrounds at Springfield are being put into top-notch shape for this year's exposition, Aug. 12 to 21. Parking space will be ready for 12,000 autos, and additional lighting is being installed in portions of the grounds where needed.

Fair employes are spraying building and grounds with DDT in the fly control work which has proven highly effective. This spraying will be kept up until after the fair.

The textiles and arts building is being completely redecorated on the inside. Minor remodeling is going on in the dairy building. Beds for 1600 youths are being set up in the Junior building, largest structure on the grounds.

Visitors to the 1949 Illinois State Fair will find things in the best shape in the long history of the great exposition, fair officials assert.

Almost half of the public school teachers in Illinois do not have any kind of degree, and 8 percent of them have only a high school education, according to Noble J. Puffer, director of the department of registration and education.

These facts and many others will be set forth in a brochure entitled "Illinois Needs Teachers for Your Children," which will be distributed to visitors at the department exhibit at the Illinois State Fair, August 12 to 21.

The dates of the squirrel hunting season in Illinois were changed by the 66th General Assembly, and the State Department of Conservation is reminding hunters that under the revised game code the season in the southern part of the state does not open until Aug. 1.

The new dates of the squirrel shooting season are: Southern zone, Aug. 1 through Oct. 15; central zone, Sept. 1 through Oct. 31; northern zone, Sept. 15 through Nov. 15.

The open season includes only red or fox squirrels and gray squirrels. There is no open season on the white species. Daily limit is five and possession limit 10. The 1949 hunting licenses are being printed and will soon be available through county and city clerks and other authorized agents.

This is the time of year when organized groups of young people like to go camping in the state parks of Illinois. Some 50,000 youngsters get this kind of outing during the vacation season each year.

Pere Marquette Park, near Grafton, has three camps which can accommodate 285 campers at one time. Former CCC barracks and buildings are available for campers at Giant City State Park, near Carbondale, and also at the New Salem, Illini and Mississippi Palisades Parks. New Salem has the most room—space for 300 campers. Privately built camp buildings at Dixon Springs Park, near Vienna, are being renovated, and will have room for 100. At New Salem the camping facilities are free; at the other parks a small fee is charged.

—Amiel.

The farmers were asked to bring hammers, and a good start was made on building 400 gates to be used in assembling the cattle pens. In the two previous years of the fair, officials had been forced to borrow the gates from Paris, Champaign, Kankakee and elsewhere.

Tastes, Leisure, Families Change; Will Affect Future

by Reynolds Knight

NEW YORK—The American market is changing and by 1960 should differ radically from the market of today. This is the conclusion reached by a market study made recently by H. M. Beville Jr., research director of the National Broadcasting Co.

The study has some findings of significance to every manufacturer and to every storeowner. Broadly speaking, the study shows that the American market is becoming more standardized in tastes and behavior. This could mean an even greater acceptance of nationally advertised brands.

Population also is moving westward, increasing the importance of those markets as compared to eastern trade centers. Most dramatic of all is the steady increase in leisure time. The work week averaged 52 hours in 1920, will be down to 37.7 hours in 1960. So those people who sell the goods and services for recreation should be able to look forward to a growing market. Though the American family is growing smaller, there is a steady increase in the number of family units. This should provide an increasing demand for small homes and the furnishings necessary to make those small homes livable and attractive.

FIRE-RESISTANT GAS TANK—During the war many Navy planes, damaged and afire, managed to make emergency landings on carrier flight decks or landing strips only to have their loads of high-octane fuel ignite and explode, destroying craft that otherwise would have survived.

The Navy sought development of a gas tank that could resist flame and heat long enough to give fire-fighting crews a real chance to save such casualties. The other day the Navy and B. F. Goodrich conducted a joint demonstration of a new fire-resistant fuel cell. Technicians squirted an 1800-degree flame on a conventional tank and it ignited within two minutes, spilling its burning high-octane gas on the ground. A similar flame directed against the new container for 10 minutes caused no damage. The secret, it was explained, lies in a special flexible coating developed by the Goodrich company's aeronautical engineers. It can be applied with a brush to practically any type of container. Other applications foreseen for this secret coating include automobile, truck and bus fuel tanks, storage containers for volatile liquids and, of course, fuel cells for commercial aircraft.

THINGS TO COME — For small families, there's a new portable dishwasher that will wash, rinse and dry a complete service for four within five minutes . . . Two manufacturing companies last week announced fluorescent lights with substantially increased life spans. These new long-life lamps are now good for 7500 hours, it is claimed . . . The Underwriters' Laboratories has just approved a light switch with a glowing bulb attached. Purpose of bulb is to mark position of switch so you can find it in the dark, though makers also suggest it can serve as a night light; neither wind nor rain nor snow will extinguish the flare from a petroleum-base product being marketed as an emergency signal for motorists stalled on a dark road . . . The old-fashioned wooden Coca-Cola cases are soon to be replaced by lighter cases made from a combination of aluminum and magnesium. The new container has definite merchandising advantages, it is said . . . Now comes the safety eyeglass for children; the new spectacles were tested by a steel BB fired at a distance of 35 feet; the lens cracked under the test, but did not shatter.

PROJECT FOR YOUTH — This year's crop of engineering graduates who yearn to build towering skyscrapers or other giant structures may find a smoother path to fame and fortune in developing instruments for measuring ultra-fine dimensions. This is the suggestion of Dr. Haakon Styri, director of research for SKF Industries, Inc., who points out that precision manufacturers are intensely interested in developing super-sensitive gauges capable of measuring differences down to and even below a millionth of an inch.

"Mass production methods have created an urgent demand for new and better types of gauges to make fast and accurate checks of the finer tolerances toward which industry is constantly advancing," he said.

"Forty years ago, measurements of one-ten thousandth of an inch were considered the ultimate in perfection. Now it's possible to determine these to within a few millionths of an inch."

Steps up the New FORD "FEEL"!

The touch of your toe on the gas pedal puts you into automatic Overdrive. Presto! Your engine speed drops 30%. Yet, your road speed remains unchanged. Your car's doing 50 m.p.h., for example, while your engine's doing only 35.

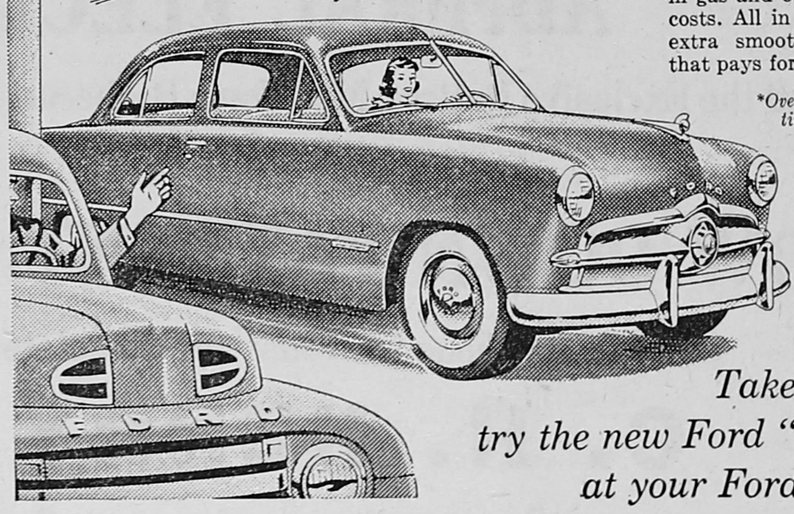

It's Automatic!

For a boost of power to climb a hill or pass in a jiffy just step down on your accelerator. Presto! You're in passing gear. Release your pedal pressure and you're back in free and easy Overdrive. It's that easy!

You get there fresher!

This slower engine speed makes driving as quiet as a summer breeze, saves you up to 15% in gas and oil . . . cuts service costs. All in all, it adds up to extra smoothness and power that pays for itself.

Grain Storage Plans Available

(Special)

URBANA — Are you planning to build more grain storage space on your farm this summer? If you are, the Illinois College of Agriculture is prepared to help you with plans and recommendations for meeting your 1949 crop storage problems.

Deane G. Carter, professor of farm structures at the University, says that a 16-page illustrated plan book has been prepared to show 30 plans for bins and cribs. Designs range from small movable bins to large combined corn cribs and granaries.

Since early in April the colleges of agriculture in the north-central states and the United States Department of Agriculture have worked together to provide this new series of plans for crop storage buildings.

Working drawings will be made available for the construction of 30 buildings. You can get plans for any of them merely by asking for them at your county farm adviser's office, at your lumber dealer's office, or at the county AAA office.

Many different materials can be used in construction, but the plans illusrate the use of various materials to assure sound construction. Temporary and semi-permanent storages are recommended only for extra or surplus corn and grain. Your farming system and cropping program will tell you how much permanent storage space you should provide.

All of the new crib designs permit easy adaptation for artificial drying.

Since most of the corn you grow is fed on your own farm, you should plan your storage buildings, elevating equipment and holding bins for convenience in processing and distributing feed as well as for ease of filling and shelling.

Government Positions Open In Pest Control Work

Announcement is made here that the U. S. government is in need of persons with experience in insect and rodent control work for duty with the Federal Security Agency, Public Health Service, Communicable Disease Center, in various localities. These positions pay entrance salaries of $2284 to $7432.20 per year. Veterans who qualify will be given preference as provided in the Act of 1944. Information may be obtained from William S. Parke, secretary of the U. S. Civil Service, local postoffice.

Speedway Racers to Perform On Opening Day of Fair

Roaring speedway-type race cars will make their final appearance of the 1949 season, as an opening day feature of the Eastern Illinois Fair in Danville, on Sunday afternoon, July 31, according to Secretary Russell B. Rogers.

About 50 laps of racing are slated for the wide raceway with a total of more than $1,500 in purse money up for the seven-event card.

Indianapolis Speedway rules governing competing motors, which proved popular in the spring meet, will be in force at the mid-summer dirt track duel.

On the basis of early entries a field of from 20 to 30 cars and drivers will attemp to qualify for one of the three heat races and the feature event where the bulk of the prize money will be at stake.

STEIGER FUR CO. OPENING CONTINUED THIS WEEK

The formal opening of the Steiger Fur Shop, 20 W. Main St., Danville, following the recent remodeling of the sales and display space, was continued through Monday evening. The business has been operated for more than 20 years.

A new modern front has been added, presenting a full display of the store from the street, and the rooms have been air conditioned. Many new furs were stocked for the opening. S. Steiger is owner-manager of the concern.

The changing glow and full effulgence of God's infinite ideas, images, mark the periods of progress.

FARM FACTS WORTH KNOWING

1. What are some of the advantages of raising broilers on the floor?

1. Good feathering.
2. Low shrinkage when transported to market.
3. Few breast blisters and deformities.
4. Good fleshing qualities.

2. What percentage of lambs born finally reach market?

Only about two-thirds of the lambs born reach market. This average could be greatly increased through a program of good feeding, good breeding, sound management and careful sanitatoin.

3. At what age should gilts be selected for their place in the brood sow herd?

Many hog breeders believe that growth and development are aids to selection. In the experimental hog herd at the research farm of the Ralston Co. at Gray Summit, Mo., gilts are selected for future herd sows when they are six months of age. Until that time they are handled the same as the market hogs for maximum growth and development.

Foundry Space To Be Increased

Expansion plans are announced for the gray iron foundry unit of the General Motors Corp. Central Foundry Division at Tilton. The foundry management plans to extend its core room and shipping department, adding about 20,000 square feet, and will add two new core ovens and a sand distribution system, replacing present equipment.

The work, which is to be completed in October, is undertaken to relieve crowded conditions in these two departments, to improve efficiency and also to provide better working conditions, it is announced by James H. Smith, general manager of the division at Saginaw, Mich. The division also operates foundries in Saginaw and Defiance, O.

Elmer Braun, plant manager here, reports that more than 20 million rough gray iron castings were made at the Tilton plant the first six months of this year.

The core room will be enlarged by extending the walls of the gray iron foundry building to the south. The shipping department will be extended by an addition near the west end of the gry iron foundry and extending north to the malleable foundry.

Former Resident on Board Of New Orleans Daily

A former newspaper man in this vicinity, Harry (Buck) Saylor, has been made a member of the board of directors and advisory editor of the New Orleans Item, according to recent announcement.

The New Orleans daily was purchased recently by David Stern, the eastern newspaper publisher, and his associates. Mr. Saylor has been with the Stern organization for many years. He was born in Oakwood and was graduated from Oakwood Township High School in 1910. His start in journalism was on the Georgetown News, where he worked several years. He went to the Danville Morning Press in 1912, and later to Springfield as a reporter for the News Record. He later became the News-Record city editor. Davd Stern Sr. was the publisher. After working in Elgin for awhile, he went with the Camden, N. J. Courier-Post, which Mr. Stern had purchased, and has been in the Stern organization almost continuously since.
